Required Materials :

- Approximately 700 m of Merino Fingering (in 400 m / 100 g skeins)
- Approximately 700 m of Mohair Lace (in 450 m / 50 g skeins)
- 4.5 mm knitting needles
- Blocking tools
- Stitch markers
- 2 cable needles

Approximate dimensions (excluding fringes)
- length : 165 cm
- width : 45 cm

It is made up of 6 different knitting stitches.
To make it, I used approximately together 700 m of fingering merino (leftover skeins of 400 m per 100 g) and approximately 700 m of white mohair lace (in 450 m per 100 g skeins) to give the knitting some texture and depth.

There is no sample, as each stitch pattern is completely different, but the final blocking step will bring out its full beauty.

Each pattern section is separated by the following 28-row section :

Finish your stole by weaving in the loose ends with a tapestry needle. Then block your stole to bring out its full beauty.

You can choose whether or not to add fringes.

In my case, I added fringes made of several strands of yarn, each approximately 30 cm long and folded in half.

1. Wrap the yarn around a sturdy piece of cardboard or a book. The support should match the desired length of your fringes.
2. Wrap the yarn as many times as needed, making sure the strands lie flat and don't overlap.
3. Use scissors to cut the strands along the top edge of the cardboard so they are all the same length.
4. Take several strands, fold them in half, insert your crochet hook into the edge of your work, pull the folded strands through, and close to form the fringe.
